LOVE CAUSES TROUBLE FOR ARMSTRONG

J. J. Fitzgerald Gets Police to Arrest LeRoy Armstrong

GIVES BOND FOR $1000

Objection Made Because of Difference in Ages

A father's objection to the marriage of Spring and Autumn, and Autumn's threats against the life of Spring's father, are said to be the reason for the arrest of Leroy Armstrong, aged 41, of Los Angeles, and posting a $1000 surety bond.

According to a complaint signed several days ago by J. J. Fitzgerald of 127 North Cedar street, Armstrong has been very attentive to Fitzgerald's daughter, who is only 21 years old. When Armstrong announced his desire to marry the girl, Mr. Fitzgerald objected, it is said. According to his story, Armstrong, upon learning of the father's objection to his marriage with the Fitzgerald girl, threatened to kill him, according to the police.

Fitzgerald swore to a complaint against Armstrong and he was arrested in El Centro Saturday afternoon by officers of Imperial county, who held him until the arrival of Sergeant James Mann of the Glendale police department. Armstrong was returned to Glendale and gave a surety bond to guarantee that he will stay away from the Fitzgerald home in the future.

ANGEL OF DEATH VISITS HOME HERE

Clara Virginia Rowley, 13, Is Taken Away Sunday

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Rowley, 334 Vine street, were shocked to learn of the death on Sunday of their 13-year-old daughter, Clara Virginia Rowley.

Two weeks ago she developed a mastoid ulcer and last week underwent a delicate operation, which the surgeons declared was necessary. The hopes of her recovery, which were at first cherished, were doomed to disappointment, and she passed away yesterday at 3:30 in the afternoon.

The was a student in Intermediate in the A-8 grade, and one of the most popular girls in the school.

Services will be held Tuesday afternoon in the Little Church of the Flowers, at 2:30 o'clock.

SALT LAKE TRAIN SERVICE AGAIN

After Three Weeks, Road Bridge Is Given Final Repair

The first Salt Lake train since the recent rains and subsequent high waters entered Glendale Sunday the first in more than three weeks.

During the rains, the bridge on Los Feliz road, over which all Glendale bound trains had to cross, was washed out. Workmen completed replacing the bridge on Sunday.

Two carloads of pipeline and other material for the city were placed in the freight yards yesterday and another is expected today.

Commonplace Things Today Were Thought Impossible Recently

Many of the things that are commonplace now, asserts Henry James in his comments on the news of the day, a generation ago would confidently have been proclaimed impossible. He says that a passenger on a train in Germany calls for a number exactly as he would in a telephone booth—and he gets it by wireless. So Mr. James believes it would be rash to set any limitation on what the future has in store.

WILSON BELIEVES HIS LEAGUE IS GOING TO LIVE

Addresses Five Thousand Who Go to His Home to Pay Honor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—That the Wilson league of nations will continue to be an issue in democratic politics, appeared to be certain to observers here today as the result of a speech by former President Wilson to a throng of his admirers yesterday.

It was Wilson's first speech since his collapse in 1919.

"There can be no doubt about the vitality of the league of nations," Wilson said to 5,000 persons who gathered in front of his home. "It will take care of itself," continued Wilson. "I have no apprehension or anxiety on that score. Those who do not regard it will have to look out for themselves. My only anxiety is that our people turn their faces in the right direction and move with irresistible force. I need hardly tell you that such a demonstration and such evidence of friendship make me very happy. I thank you very much for all this. I do not deserve it, but I enjoy it."

The crowd had come from a mass meeting at which a campaign for a $1,000,000 fund to perpetuate Wilson's ideals had been started.

VISIT SCHOOL BUILDINGS IN ORANGE

High School Officials on Junket to See Buildings

VISITED PASADENA

Board Views Fine Buildings in Other Sections

Members of the high school board of trustees and members of their families, devoted the greater part of Sunday to a motor trip of inspection of three typical high schools of Southern California with a view to getting ideas for the new high school plant to be built in this city.

The party included Dr. and Mrs. H. V. Brown and family, H. W. Yarick and daughter Margery Yarick, Captain and Mrs. Thomas D. Watson and family, Mr. and Mrs. George U. Moyse and family.

Their first stop was at Pasadena where they were received by the assistant principal who showed them the campus of 33 acres and explained that seven more acres are to be added to it. The school now numbers about 2300 students and improvements are being planned with reference to 4000 students.

One of the most interesting facts gleaned was the method of financing the annual improvements by a special tax to cover them as made instead of a bond issue. The present buildings are taxed to their capacity.

From Pasadena the party journeyed to Fullerton where the members were refreshed with a good dinner before inspecting the high school. They were met by the principal who explained that the general plan which is being followed for the improvement of the 17-acre campus was obtained by a competition in which a prize of $2500 was offered. Theirs is a district high school and in the opinion of the board members not enough room has been reserved for the athletic field.

Santa Ana was the next place visited and because it had not been possible to make preliminary arrangements, there was no one to receive the party though they were given the keys and saw some of the buildings.

It was the consensus of opinion that the plan of the Pasadena high school came nearer to meeting the needs of Glendale than anything else seen. Auditoriums were of special interest to the Glendale trustees because they are anxious to build one that will cover not only the needs of the school but the community as well. The Santa Ana auditorium will accommodate about 1400.

The start was made at 9 a. m. and the return at 7:30 p. m., but it had been an excursion of great interest.

Tuesday evening the board will give a hearing to more architects who are seeking commissions in connection with the high school plant.

PICTURES LADIES HALF DRESSED TO BE ELIMINATED

Good Roads Ass'n. Tear Down Posters to Save Accidents

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A campaign to eliminate sign boards carrying pictures of women in various states of undress, was launched at the national convention of the American Good Roads association here today. Advertisements of stockings, corsets and underwear, came under the ban.

"The present generation will live to see the American highway beautified," Lieut. Col. L. H. Bowlby, president of the American Roadbuilders' association, told the United Press. "The time is near at hand when all main highways will be paved; lined with trees and shrubbery; obnoxious signs and grade crossings eliminated."

"America has about 2,700,000 miles of highway of which only about 15 per cent is improved," he stated, "but we are now in an area of road building which will put this nation in the lead."

THIEVES VISITED SEVERAL HOMES HERE SUNDAY

Robbers Worked Saturday and Sunday in City Homes

Burglars were active in Glendale Saturday and Sunday nights. Four homes were entered and robbed and from the manner in which the jobs were done, the police believe the same burglar or burglars are responsible for all of the robberies. The robbers were fast workers, as is indicated by the fact that all of the robberies occurred between the hours of 5 and 10 p. m.

The home of John Hobbs, 920 South Central, was robbed during the family's absence on Saturday night. The rear window was jimmied and the house ransacked. The thieves secured several articles of jewelry. The police were notified of the burglary when the Hobbs family returned to their home. Motorcycle Officers Collins and Trautwein responded.

J. H. Heinmiller, 1016 East Lomita street, reported on the same night that his house had been robbed between the hours of 5:30 and 8:30 p. m., during the family's absence. A rear door and window had been jimmied. A watch was the only thing taken at this place. Officers Trautwein and Collins also responded to this call.

The last job of the house-breakers on Saturday night was at the home of J. E. Bennett, 1114 South Central. Entrance to the house was gained by opening a window on the front porch. A watch and several pins were secured by the thieves. Officers Nunn and Klier are investigating.

Sunday night the burglars, supposedly the same gang, entered the home of W. C. Fraley, 212 North Glendale avenue, and ransacked the entire lower floor. Details of the Sunday robbery are practically the same as the jobs done on Saturday. The house was entered between the hours of 5 and 7 p. m. while the family was away from home. Patrolmen Anthony and Kearns found the rear screen door had been cut, the door unhooked and a pass key used. Two guns and several articles of jewelry were taken.

Detective Sergeants Delgardo and Herda are working on the burglaries. At one of the houses robbed, Detective Sergeant Delgardo secured a clue that may be of valuable assistance in finding the thieves.

HAYNES TELLS HOW DRY LAW WORKED

Says More Effective Work Will Be Done in Future

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The most serious task confronting prohibition enforcement officials at this time is to change the opinions of people who have been led to believe prohibition is a failure, Commissioner Haynes said addressing the congregation of Union Square Methodist church.

Violators of the prohibition law, Commissioner Haynes said, are of two classes, the faddist drinkers and those who have appetites established through years of indulgence. Most of the latter class, he said, may be expected to use liquor as long as they live, either through supplies acquired before prohibition became effective, or by illegal means.

The fact that more arrests for drunkenness are being made now in some communities than before prohibition does not indicate that more drinking is being indulged in, but that the laws against drunkenness are being more rigidly enforced, the Commissioner said. New plans and rules are being devised, he added, to make enforcement more effective.

LLOYD GEORGE HAS NEW PLAN TO PUT EUROPE NORMAL

Would Include Germany and Russia in New Scheme

LONDON, Jan. 16.—An association of nations, including Germany and Russia, rising out of the economic conference at Genoa, is Lloyd George's plan for rehabilitation of the old world.

With his plans for European reconstruction shaken by the uncompromising attitude of the new French government under Premier Poincare, Premier Lloyd George returned to London and made preparations for fresh international action. He has three dominating ideas as to what must be done for Europe.

1.—The entente, he believes, must be thoroughly overhauled and Anglo-French difficulties straightened out. The association of the allies, the British premier feels, should form the nucleus of a wider European settlement, similar to that reached at Washington.

2.—The Genoa economic conference must be made a real medium for European economic reconstruction. It must be made to produce results, which the dissension of no one nation can destroy.

3.—An association of nations, including the late enemy states and Russia and, if possible the United States, should be the outgrowth of the parley, Lloyd George believes.

Lloyd George's idea for a wider entente was said to be that the present alliance of Britain, France, Japan, Italy and Belgium will, if it remains ultra-exclusive, preclude the possibility of Pan-European cooperation.

IMMORALITY OF NEW KIND COMES

Dr. Wilbur Crafts Sees Great Evils on Horizon Here

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—America is threatened with an invasion of Turkish immorality, Dr. Wilbur Crafts said here today. Visions of ladies in silken pantalettes doing a Turkish dance and treading with bare feet on the morals of the world were conjured up by Crafts. He foresaw a dull smoke of incense accompanying this immorality wave — poison gas for the morals of the American youths.

Evidences of this Turkish immorality wave are "vampires, jazz, and joy rides," Crafts said, in predicting disaster to the morals of the nation unless it is stopped.

"The Bible holds the lesson for us in the history of Elijah's slaughter of the priests of Baal, for their immorality," Dr. Crafts said. "Turkish immorality then had crept over the world.

"The same situation is revived today when there is in progress a systematic corruption of our people by vampires, jazz, and joy rides."

LIQUID DYNAMITE

WALNUT, Calif., Jan. 16.—Using a large quantity of nitro-glycerine, a band of daring safe-crackers today blew open a safe at the postoffice here and escaped with the contents. The amount of loot taken has not been established. The robbery was discovered when the postoffice was opened today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Senator McCumber today reported from the finance committee the foreign debt refunding bill, providing for collection of the $11,000,000,000 owed the United States by the allies.

COMMITTEE ON SEWAGE IS ENLARGED

Citizens Met Today With Council to Work on Problem

ADD NEW MEMBERS

Further Investigation to Be Made and Report Given Council

At a meeting held this morning, at which a large number of representative citizens were present with members of the city council, for the purpose of considering the sewage question and the proposed disposal plant mentioned in the papers a few days ago, it was decided to take up a further consideration of the sewer matter contemplating the handling of sewage for Glendale and adjacent communities.

It was recommended that the present sewer committee be enlarged in membership so as to further co-operate with the city council in arriving at a final solution of the sewer problem. It was recognized at the meeting today that the work of the sewer committee now authorized, has been of great assistance to the council and to the city in way of enlightening the people generally on the importance of the solution of the sewer problem. It was also further recognized that the council has, during the past months, devoted a great deal of time and effort to the sewer problem and that it is generally recognized that the city of Glendale cannot afford to permit interest in this matter to subside.

It was thought wise to continue the installation of the disposal system that is now being installed for the business district and give it a trial as to its efficiency. It is conceded of great importance that the general sewer system be kept in progress so that in event the local system for the business district should become inadequate or overtaxed, that the connection could be made with such general system so as to relieve the business district.

To this end, it was decided by those present and concurred in by the members of the council that the proposed plan of the disposal in the northwest section be referred back to the committee and the council in connection with the consideration of these two bodies and disposed of by the action of the committee and council after full consideration of the entire matter.

This action having been taken by the meeting, makes it unnecessary for the attendance at the proposed mass meeting at the Union high school tonight for the purpose of considering the sewer problem.

Immediate action will be taken by the council to appoint additional members of the sewer committee and the matter will proceed as herein indicated.

At the meeting held this morning, the fact was brought out that a general sanitary district will probably be projected, contemplating the treatment and disposal of sewage for the various contiguous municipalities of Los Angeles county. This is a matter of great concern to the people of the different municipalities of Los Angeles county and it is hoped that by cooperating with each other, some effective plan can be evolved whereby the entire question can be satisfactorily solved. This matter will be taken up at once by the enlarged committee.

BRITISH PREPARE TO FREE IRELAND

DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—British and Irish representatives met today at the Mansion House for the purpose of transferring the reins of government from the crown to the free state. Viscount Fitzallen, viceroy of Ireland, met members of the provisional government. This provisional administration, headed by Arthur Griffith, was ready to assume all responsibilities, after which the British authorities will withdraw from the country.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 16.—Peter Peep of Little Ferry today shot and killed his wife, dangerously wounded his daughter, Mary, 2 years old, and killed himself, the Hackensack police were informed by his son George, aged 13. Peep's body, with four bullet wounds in the chest, was found near that of his wife.

MILLION TO PERPETUATE WILSON IDEALS

NEW YORK, Jan. 16. — The effort to collect a million dollars to create a Woodrow Wilson foundation which will be a permanent memorial to America's war president, was launched today throughout the United States. A "Wilson hour" from noon until 1 o'clock, was designated as the hour when the first contributions were to be received at headquarters in many cities.

EIGHTY YEARS OLD TAKES OFFICE AS MAYOR TODAY

Mrs. Mary McFadden Will Guide Destiny of Ohio Town

MAGNETIC SPRINGS, O., Jan. 16.—The oldest woman mayor in the United States started today to give Magnetic Springs a real old-fashioned administration.

Mrs. Mary McFadden, 80 years old, just appointed head of this little village was busy superintending baking of doughnuts, cookies and cakes with which she will open her first council meeting tonight.

"I'm going to give this town a scrubbing behind the ears too," she said as she busied herself with official preparations. "I will have this village as clean as a pin by spring. Anyone who refuses to work for me will be fed on bread and water.

"And bootleggers—I have no sympathy for them. As judge of the city court I will deal with them severely and give everyone the limit. The city jail hasn't had an occupant in three months, but I'll get the cobwebs out and have it ready for company."

Despite her "old-fashioned" administration, bobbed hair and short skirts will not be banished, Mrs. McFadden said.

"I can stand it, if they can," she said. "But if it comes to wearing just a belt, the girls must wear a wide one."

TROOP TWO IS GIVEN HOME ON SATURDAY

Boys Hear Fine Talks by Heads of Local Scout Council

Scout Songs Lend Interest to Fine Meeting for Boys

Saturday night was one of the brightest in the history of Glendale Troop No. 2, Boy Scouts of America, for it witnessed the dedication of its beautiful cabin clubhouse in Verdugo Woodlands, near the home of Charles L. Chandler.

Through the kindness of P. L. Hatch, of the Glendale-Montrose railroad, a special car had been provided without charge to convey the boys of the troop to the Woodlands. Mr. Hatch has two sons in the troop and has always been much interested in its work.

Before the members of the troop reached their destination, automobiles bearing parents and friends had begun to arrive, and when the boys presented themselves, a company of about 60 were in possession of the cabin. They had been welcomed by Benjamin Robison, scoutmaster of the troop, and Mrs. Robison, who had been active in assistance in building and furnishing the cabin, and who share to the full the interest of their son, Benjamin Robison, Jr., the directing genius of the troop.

They did the honors of the cabin, exhibiting to interested visitors its little kitchen, which contains a well blacked wood stove to be used in bad weather when the outdoor camp fire is impracticable, also the office and supply closet, where the camp paraphernalia is kept, and the very attractive club room, with its big stone fireplace at one end wherein a cheerful fire was blazing, its frieze of troop flags for its various patrols—the Wolf, the Pine Tree, the Whip-poor-will and the Stag—the book shelves partly filled and inviting contributions of volumes likely to be of interest to the boys, the beautiful table given by Dr. Scaife, who is an honorary member of the troop and its very good friend.

When the boys arrived they arranged themselves as best they could on the floor before the fire, and on behalf of the troop, Benjamin Robison, Sr., formally welcomed the guests.

GLENDALE POST TO 'GET TOGETHER'

Fine Banquet in Chamber Rooms Will Be Big Event

The regular meeting of the Glendale post No. 127, American Legion, scheduled for Friday night, is postponed because of the banquet to be held at the chamber of commerce for members of the Legion, former service men and their friends.

Plans are being made to accommodate 200 at the banquet and an elaborate program of music and entertainment has been arranged, in addition to an excellent menu.

This banquet will take the form of a "get-together" meeting for the new members and former service men who are not members of the organization.

GUN AND BOOZE TAKEN BY POLICE

Officers Collins and Stein and Detective Sergeant Delgardo on Sunday afternoon arrested Joe Doletti and Frank Funaro of Los Angeles, at the intersection of Brand boulevard and Park avenue. Doletti was charged with carrying a concealed wapon and Funaro was held on a charge of reckless driving. A pint flask of moonshine liquor was found in the car. The men were released on their own recognizance to appear in court today. Their car and money were held as a guarantee that they would appear. The gun and the booze were held as evidence.

MORE CHANGES SCHEDULED WHEN HAYS GOES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The retirement of Will H. Hays as postmaster general may lead to other important changes in the administration. Unless Dr. Hubert Work, first assistant postmaster general, is promoted to the Hays' vacancy, he will step down with his chief. So will Edward H. Shaughnessy, the second assistant postmaster general. Dr. Work has been in direct charge of postmaster appointments throughout the country.

AUXILIARY TO CHANGE ITS DATE

Great Work Has Been Done by Eagle Rock Ladies

EAGLE ROCK, January 16 — The Women's Auxiliary of the Theodore C. Koethen Post, No. 227, of the American Legion, announces that the time of meeting has been changed from every other Thursday evening to the first and third Tuesday afternoons of each month, from 2:30 to 4:30.

The members feel that much has been accomplished in the short time since the auxiliary was organized. Their first effort was an ambitious one for so small a number—the garden fete and bazaar at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Bessolo, which was a complete success. The proceeds were divided into thirds, one to be used for the disabled boys at Thornycroft, one to be turned over to the post for its headquarters fund, and one to be held in reserve by the auxiliary for such future use as seems advisable. Sleeping garments were made prior to the holidays and, together with jams, jellies, and 53 stockings filled with candies, oranges, cigarettes, and apples, were sent to Thornycroft. The invalids particularly enjoyed the jelly and further contributions of jelly will always be welcomed. The auxiliary urges any mother, wife, or sister of a veterans of the world war in Eagle Rock who is not yet a member to come to the meetings and add her name to the roster.

EDITORIALS

By the People

Editor Glendale Press: In connection with the letters which have recently appeared in the Press regarding our means of transpotation, there are a few points which I would like to bring before the public. Glendale needs a car line of its own. Can anyone dispute that? Since we are all aware of that fact let's have one, and have it quick. The next step is for the chamber of commerce to take it up. Glendale has a good chamber of commerce, and there is no reason why we cannot handle this proposition. The idea of running a freight train down as valuable a street as Glendale avenue is a perfect fright, and a good joke to outsiders. The idea of paying the price the Pacific Electric is asking is just as bad. Some one said we were fighting the high fare, well perhaps so, but let's finish it properly; competition will be a real finishing touch.

The bus line on Verdugo road was a good suggestion, but what happened to it? How about the proposed car line on Glendale avenue?

Glendale made the largest percentage of growth during 1921 of any city in the country, but is this growth going to continue? I refuse to be called a pessimist, but with no car line of our own, and the present rate of the Pacific Electric I fear the future will be less encouraging.

The letter signed by E. M. Unwin hit the point, and prompted this letter. I wolud like to see more express themselves. I'm for a greater Glendale, are you?

P. TIJLIER.

LEGION NOTES

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Proyosed substitution of civilian doctors for medical reserve officers in government hospitals has precipitated mammoth indignation movement at the Fox Hills hospital, Staten Island. With pledge of aid from the American Legion, the 700 disabled veterans are conducting an organized offensive, which opened with a wire to President Harding protesting the recommendation of the bureau of efficiency, which, the soldiers say, "will make goats of us by foisting 2000 inexperienced doctors upon us."

Hobbling into the big assembly hall on crutches or rolled to the head of their aisles in wheel chairs, every ambulatory patient attended the first meeting and voiced loud opposition to the proposed "economy measure." They were told that the efficiency board at Washington had recommended that Harding transfer the members of the Reserve Corps to the Public Health Service to the inactive list, a plan which is promised to effect a saving of $75,000.

"These good old buddy doctors," said one of the leaders at the meeting, "Will be replaced by local physicians—the cheap kind of doctor who has no interest in you or me. He will lack sympathy for us—the sympathy which the buddy doctor has because he knows what to do."

Hanford MacNair, commander of the American Legion, wired that he would back the crippled and sick soldiers to the limit in their fight to defeat the proposed change in medical personnel. The Legion's legislative committee at Washington has entered a vigorous protest against the measure.

A boy in a Welsh school essayed to write on Henry VIII, and a London paper reports him as beginning thus: "King Henry VIII. was the greatest widower that ever lived. He was born at Anno Domino in the year 1066. He had 510 wives besides children. The first was beheaded and executed. The second was revoked. She never smiled again. Henry 8 was succeeded on the throne by Mary Queen of Scots, sometimes known as the Lady of the Lake."

WHY THE RED DOG WOULDN'T TELL ITS NAME

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Who are you?" that's what the cat the red dog had taken for a rabbit down by the Big Marsh asked him. (Oh, yes, the Big Marsh, over beyond the Deep Woods, was as near to Louis Thomson's house as the dog had come a long while after sundown.)

"Well, Mr. No-Name," purred the cat, as pleasant as you please, "I can't think in this wind."

What an embarrassing question!

"I—er—I—ah—don't tell that to strangers," it stammered.

"Why not?" demanded the cat. "I'll tell you who I am. I'm Malty." (Of course, you've known that all the time.) "If you won't tell me your name, then what do you want of Dr. Muskrat's Pond? I'll tell you now I don't like your actions." You ought to have seen how he was bristling.

The dog was more embarrassed than ever. It guessed right off Malty knew it had meant to catch him. "I—er—I just wanted to see Dr. Muskrat. He's a friend of a friend of mine."

"Oh, he is, is he?" sniffed the pussy. "I s'pose maybe you mean to go partners with him on some business of yours—with him on the inside."

Now the dog knew that sarcastic cat meant it expected to eat the old doctor. Wasn't it horrified! "Oh, no!" it exclaimed. "I just wanted to ask him what to do next. Maybe the stars have told him my fortune by this time. Even if they haven't, Watch says all the woodsfolk take their troubles to him. And he always helps them."

"Is that so?" said Malty, more kindly. He knew what the trouble was. And he guessed this poor, shivery beast wasn't so bad after all, if Tommy Peele's old tail-wagger was the friend it spoke of. "Who do you belong to?"

"I don't know," answered the red dog honestly. "I don't think I belong to any one now. You see, I want to belong to Louie Thomson, but I don't quite know how. I want to belong to him so nobody can take me away from him ever again."

"I see." Malty wiped his face thoughtfully. "I see. And I see why you won't tell me your name."

"No you don't." The red dog actually grinned. "Not all the reason. It isn't just because I want to be lost. It's because I've made up my mind I won't have any name till Louie calls me one." Which was much smarter than it really sounds—as you'll see.

"Well, Mr. No-name," purred the cat, as pleasant as you please. "I can't think in this wind. I'm going in by the stove, where my fur won't stand on end. Want to come? Oh, it'll be all right. I know my man. He's good to every one."

NEXT STORY—WHAT WAS MALTY UP TO NOW?

Fashions for Americans

The sketch shows one of the first suits developed for spring or for southern resort wear. It is a three-piece model—that is, a dress with matching coat or jacket. The frock is simplicity itself as to line, made with a decidedly low waist, the waist line being emphasized by the belt or band. The coat fastens at the neck only, falling open to reveal the frock it covers. These three-piece costumes have been very popular for fall and winter wear, and there seems to be every indication that they will hold over just as strong for spring. In fact, the style bobs up every season, and it has every right to. It is decidedly practical and economical.

Here is One of the Latest Three-Piece Costumes

For very early spring wear there will be many suits that feature a coat of one fabric and skirt of another, these of course being primarily in the sports class, but very smart and striking many of them are.

For example, a plain tweed coat in a tan mixture is accompanied by a skirt of self-fabric in tan and brilliant blue stripes, the tan stripes in the skirt exactly matching the coat. And one of the skirts recently seen in the advance spring showing was a decidedly circular affair, at the top of the skirt and flaring to the weave of the fabric at the hem

Incidentally, Paris fashion bulletins record the fact that suits are very much featured in the mid-season openings, and it is also stated that the French designers are decidedly favoring the two-fabric suit, the coat being in one color and skirt in contrasting shade, with a touch of the skirt fabric often used to make collar and cuffs for the little coat.

Bright reds and greens, yellows, and blues are noted in the sports suits for southern resort wear, the coat or jacket being of the plain vivid shade, with skirt of white and colored stripes or all white stitched in a shade to match the coat.

The average number of lives lost in the coal mines in the United States during January each year from 1913 to 1920 has been 203. The production of coal has averaged 50,779,000 tons, showing a fatality rate of four per million tons as representative of the month of January during the last eight years.

Be Learnable

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

When you were a little boy beginning school you appreciated the fact that you knew very little. You paid attention to what your teacher had to say. You recognized that the school books given you to study would impart information you did not before possess.

That is to say, you began school in a receptive, a learnable attitude. In so far as you have remained learnable you have profited from the instruction of the schoolroom.

And now that you are turning from the life of the schoolroom to the life of the workaday world, now that you are launching on a business career, do not make the mistake of thinking that it is no longer necessary for you to be learnable.

As a matter of fact, you are merely changing from one school to another—from the school of formal lessons to the school of industrial and commercial experience. You can no more dispense with learnability in the latter than in the former.

Many young men, unfortunately for themselves, do not take this sufficiently into account. Many young men actually behave as though they had nothing more to learn once they put school behind them.

Being inexperienced in a business way, they are sure to make mistakes. But they do not profit from these, as they would if they were learnable. Their mistakes are not to them the lessons they ought to be. So they continue to make similar mistakse—as long as their employers will give them opportunity to do so.

Moreover, because they do not sense the importance of being learnable, they do not keep their eyes and ears open to draw useful hints from their superiors and from older fellow workers. If hints are specifically offered they may even reject them as superfluous.

The result is that they do all their work mechanically, unreflectively, inefficiently. And the result of this in turn is that they gradually sink to the level of the unemployable. Or, if they escape this sad fate, they soon or late are driven to a realization that they must all their days toil in inferior positions.

Only the learnable progress. And always the most learnable, those who properly evaluate their work as offering opportunities for constantly growing in knowledge, progress most rapidly. This is a rule without exceptions.

Wherefore be careful not to begin your own work in a foolish "know it all" frame of mind.

Admit frankly to yourself that, in the nature of things, you really can know very little about the specific work for which you have been employed until you have been engaged in it for some time. And admit also that time alone will not suffice to make you grow in knowledge.

From the outset you must be learnable. Day in and out you must remain learnable. Else mediocrity and failure are your certain fortune.

That said contemplated work or improvement in the opinion of said Council is of more than local or ordinary public benefit and will affect and benefit the land and district hereinafter described, and said Council hereby declares that the district in said City of Glendale benefitted by said work or improvement and to be assessed to pay the costs an expenses thereof, compdrises the following escribed lots, pieces and parcels of land, all in the City of Glendale:

Lots 30 to 56 inclusive in Block S and oLts 1 to 25 of Black R, all of the Glendale Valley View Tract as per map recorded in Book 9, Page 157 of maps, Records of Los Angeles County, California.

Reference is hereby made to Map No. 457-A approved by the City Council in which the assessment district referred to is shown within red colored border lines.

SECTION 3. The Council of the City of Glendale determines that serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of seven (7) per cent shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the cost of said work or improvement; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January, every year after their date until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of seven per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid. All of the herein proposed work shall be done in pursuance of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, designated as the "Improvement Act of 1911," approved April 7, 1911, and amendments thereto.

Reference is hereby made to Resolution of Intention No. 1309 for further particulars of said work.

Bidders must file with each proposal or bid a check payable to the City of Glendale, certified by a responsible bank, for an amount which shall not be less than ten per cent of the aggregate of the proposal, or a bond for the said amount and so payable, signed by the bidder and two sureties, who shall justify before any officer competent to administer oaths, for double the said amount, and over and above all statutory exemptions.

In bidding use blanks which will be furnished by the City Clerk upon application.

Dated this 13th day of January, 1922.

A. J. VAN WIE.
City Clerk of the City of Glendale.

Evanston "Cops" are Longest on Culture

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 16.—Correct speech is the requisite for a job on the Evanston police force.

In some police departments, deeds of daring by members of the force, spectacular captures, devotion to duty at cost of life are eulogized by the medals, decorations and pictures on the walls. Not so in Evanston.

Here, Noah Webster is the patron saint, the ruling hand which guides and leads the "coppers," from Chief Leggett to Patrolman Jan Iskovitz.

Education's the thing!

No more are police allowed to say:

"Send the wagon, gotta pair of drunks."

It's:

"Will you please send the patrol, I have two inebriated gentlemen."

The dictionary study order was promulgated by Chief Leggett in order to increase efficiency on the force.

A number of police of foreign descent had been added to the rolls and desk men and citizens complained their speech was so incorrect and so slovenly it was almost impossible to understand them.

Now the "coppers" are so far advanced the desk sergeant has to place a dictionary at his side in order to understand the charges for arrests.

For instance:

"A still isn't a still any more, a dip isn't a dip, a stick-up isn't a stick-up, a second-story man isn't a crook—they're all seven syllable somethings," complained Desk Sergeant Paasch as he looked up "uxoricide" in the dictionary.

Officer Moriarity had just reported a man was guilty of uxoricide over on Sheridan road.

"I wish I knew whether he means uxoricide or taking exercise," Paasch remarked as he ordered the squad out.

"When every moonshiner is engaged in fractional extraction—what's a plain cop to do," he wailed.

"The dictionary is ruining the department — everything's going blooey—I mean awry."

But Webster stays, ruled Chief Leggett, and the classes in synonyms and prefixes and suffixes will meet regularly.

GRACE WILL PAY PENALTY HE SAYS

PASADENA, Jan. 16.—No plea for probation will be made by Fred A. Grace, according to his statement. Grace, who only a few days ago was a highly respected citizen and now is a confessed highwayman who took $15,000 from a bank messenger on a busy corner in broad daylight last October, resignedly says he must pay the penalty.

AVIATORS IN COLD AND GALE BREAK NON-STOP RECORD

Edward Stinson.

Flying for 27 hours, 2 minutes and 50 seconds in the face of a gale that reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour, the JL-6, all-metal monoplane, broke the world's endurance record for aircraft at Mineola, N. Y. The triumphant American aviators are Edward Stinson and Lloyd Bertaud. Stinson was in charge of the plane, assisted by Bertaud. The aviators took off at 8:58 a. m. and landed the next morning at 11:17. At the start of their trip they were confronted by a heavy snow storm. When the storm stopped a high wind sprang up, and during the remainder of the flight the machine was buffeted in a gale of 60 miles an hour. Both Stinson and Bertaud were army aviators during the war. Stinson's home is in McKeesport, Pa. Bertaud spent two years in the army air service and instructed at Bolling Field, Wash., and at Love Field, Dallas, Texas. The above illustration shows the type of plane used in the record-breaking flight and Aviator Stinson, who piloted the machine.

Henry Ford Freed Horses; Now He Will Free Dollars

Millionaire Auto Manufacturer Announces Fight on International Jews Will Stop to Take Up New Basis for Money Values to Solve Problem

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Abandoning his fight against the "international Jew" Henry Ford, this week will open the greatest battle of his career—a national-wide campaign to readjust the basis of American money. The Detroit automobile manufacturer made the announcement of his new campaign in Washington, just before leaving for home. While he was in Washington, pressure was brought upon Ford to continue his anti-Jewish campaign and to "let the money issue alone." This pressure was brought by certain non-Jewish financial houses.

"They would rather we'd hammer the Jew" he said, "than bring the money question to the front. But the money question today is vital. The world cannot get back to work and prosperity until we have established our money on a basis of productivive energy. Our money must create work.

"We have all the gold in the world. We have millions of unemployed, Germany has no gold. Germany has no unemployed. Germany is the busiest country in Europe."

Ford's plan for reorganization of the American money system calls for establishment of a new basis of value behind money, eliminating gold. It is his theory that money should be issued against great government projects, which in themselves create work, such as the Muscle Shoals project.

"We had enough material on the 'international Jew' to keep up the campaign for five years," Ford said, explaining the shift in his plans. "We have had offers of a great deal more important material since I have been in Washington. When I became convinced several months ago that the money question was the more important, I determined to close up the campaign on the Jews at the end of the year and move on to the next line of attack.

"I certainly appreciate that there are interests that would prefer to see us continue to shoot at the international Jewish banker and not touch banks and not touch the money issue. The last hits them too close."

Practical Methods Of Pruning Deciduous Trees

By LOUIS S. BADOUR.

In my previous articles I attempted to show clearly why the Long-System of pruning deciduous trees should be adopted. I gave proofs, explanations for every operation; nevertheless I find here and there, in our town, some trees butchered by the old way of pruning, but a great majority are being pruned by the Long system. This is encouraging.

In this article I endeavor to state, in a practical way, how young trees should be treated so that anybody should be enabled to prune his own trees intelligently or would know, if a pruner be hired, whether or not the work is properly done.

Before entering this subject give the tree a coat of whitewash soon after planting to prevent sun burn on the trunk which will cause the death of the tree. It must be borne in mind that when the young tree is in the nursery a balance is established between the root and the top. When it is dug out some of the root is lost, and in order to balance this loss we should, at planting, cut back the tree at a height of 20 to 24 inches above the ground. If we fail to do that the tree becomes weak.

During April, we should pinch off all new shoots after they have attained three or four inches, except three, which we call main or scaffold branches. These branches should have a space of about six inches between them and should be properly balanced around the trunk, forming equal angles of about 120 degrees each. Some are of the opinion that these main branches should be headed back lightly the first summer, but the best results have been obtained by allowing them to make an undisturbed growth.

Sometimes it happens that the young tree forms few branches or laterals while in the nursery. In this case, if the branches are in the right place they could be utilized as main branches, otherwise they should be removed. Care should be taken, however, not to injure the ring of tissue which surrounds the twig at its juncture with the trunk, as it is from this tissue that the new shoots arise.

At the first winter pruning, head the three main branches lightly. By that we mean to cut them back from 15 to 30 inches or more from their juncture with the trunk. The severity of this first cutting depends upon the total length of the new wood; the longer the branches, the more severe the cutting back.

During May of the second summer the tree is in the orchard, several shoots will be found on the main branches. Now is your opportunity to form a beautiful, shapely tree. Select two of those shoots properly placed and about six or eight inches apart, for secondary branches and cut the main branch back to the upper secondary branch or lateral. You have now three main branches and six secondary branches, and that is quite sufficient for the formation of a good mature tree. I would recommend having the lower secondary branch about five feet from the ground as then the branches are low enough to facilitate the picking of the fruit.

Visit the tree frequently and suppress all new shoots that are undesirably placed, thus inducing the growth where wanted. If you do that faithfully, and keep the tree free from undesirable new shoots during this second summer and the tree has attained a spread of about five feet, you would have moved the second winter pruning to the preceding May and you would have obtained the second and the third season's shaping during the second year. Pruning done at that time not only hastens the shaping of the tree but induces the removal of many unnecessary shoots, thus rducing the second winter pruning to a minimum. Let us not forget that if the tree did not have the desirable spread, a heading back may be given.

Pruning from that time on consists in only thinning out, no heading back being necessary.

A tree handled in this manner produces a good commercial crop during the fourth season.

Any questions regarding pruning will be cheerfully answered in the columns of this publication.

NAVAL PROGRAM READY FOR MEET

Last Work Will Be Done Today on Most Important Pact

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The final draft of the great naval limitation treaty, moulded by master minds of the arms conference, today was expected to receive final approval of the full disarmament committee before going to a plenary session. The committee, summoned unexpectedly for this afternoon, was prepared to receive from the Japanese an acquiescence in section 19—the Pacific fortification limitation clause. Then the representatives of the quintet of world naval powers were ready to report the draft.

This done, the treaty goes to open session soon. Woven into satisfaction over imminent conclusion of this monumental task, were both optimism and pessimism on the Far Eastern situation.

The Japanese were understood to have Tokio advices making possible a nearer approach and perhaps settlement of the Shantung controversy but some of the Chinese were pessimistically claiming that this could not be settled here. The Chinese home situation may have a distinct bearing on the work of the Far Eastern and Shantung groups.

Truths in Epigram

Be ruled by time, the wisest counsellor of all. — Plutarch (46-120 (?) A. D.).

The magic of the tongue is the most dangerous of all spells. — Lytton (1805-1873).

Sorrow and silence are strong, and patient endurance is godlike.—Longfellow (1807-1882).

THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Every city of metropolitan size has a traffic problem such as had not been dreamed of before the days of the automobile. In some of them the problem had become serious even in the days of the horse-drawn vehicle. The basis of the trouble was that in laying out the cities an insufficient width was allowed for streets.

In Philadelphia for example, some of the thoroughfares are so narrow that but a single car track is permitted. Cars are allowed to move in but one direction, and all traffic between sidewalks must follow the same direction. A little more than a decade ago Philadelphia awakened to the necessity of having a spacious and direct thoroughfare from the business district to Fairmount park. The work was undertaken. It involved the razing of costly public and private buildings, and the bill ran into millions.

Since the automobile everywhere has made the problem more acute, cities are considering many plans, including subways and elevated lines, and the widening of streets. Any of these methods must be vastly expensive, and not fully adequate. Probably some sort of a solution will be worked out.

The lesson to smaller cities, and to towns just starting, is obvious enough. There should be generous space for streets. Take care of this at the beginning, and millions will be saved. Take care of it early in the little city's growth, and the expense will not be overwhelming. Let it go until huge buildings tower on each side, and a staggering outlay will be called for by the changes that ultimately will be inevitable.

POISON AS A BEVERAGE

Official statisticics show that in the United States eight persons daily are killed by the poison now sold for human consumption in the guise of whisky, gin or brandy. From January 1 to 11 the total deaths counted were 108. There was no sign of a diminishing rate, but the contrary.

These deaths cannot represent the real total. How many have been killed, their taking off ascribed to this malady or that, but really due to liquor, there is no way of telling. The deaths specifically ascribed to various types of moonshine liquor, mean those that followed the indulgence quickly and directly. In instances the drink was as rapid in action as any of the admittedly active poisons such as are sold only in receptacles marked by a death's head.

The time seems to have come to charge the moonshiner with more than the breaking of the prohibition law. He is breaking the law that forbids murder.

To sell as whisky, under false label, stuff that has wood alcohol as its basis, is as truly murder as to knock out a man's brains with a bludgeon. To take money for the liquid purveyed is as truly robbery as to pick the pocket or rifle a safe.

DEEP RESEARCH

Scientists of Columbia college are studying the game of poker. More properly, it might be said that they are studying the poker-player. They are on the trail of his "complex." They desire to know why it is that this abandoned sportsman will sit up all night in the effort to hold a better hand, or run a more successful bluff than his associates of the occasion.

The learned educators called for volunteers, asking for good poker players, yet they offered to pay the students for the time spent at the gaming table. This showed the ignorance that prevails in upper college circles. A moderate knowledge of psychology would cause the professors to know that no good poker player has to be hired to indulge. Once he is started, a considerable bribe might be necessary to make him break away.

People play poker because they like to match wits with their fellows; because the possibility of getting something for nothing ever allures; because it gives mental stimulation, promotes knowledge of human nature, and is in itself a social function.

Why do women like to play auction bridge? Where is the elusive complex that urges them on to waste time and strain their tempers? Nobody knows exactly why a boy plays marbles or spins a top. The charm of croquet is a puzzle to observers. Ping pong never made wide appeal, and yet a few found it captivating.

Who can explain all these things, and what would be the use of explaining?

SALARIES OF PUBLIC MEN

Members of the senate and house have salaries of $7500 a year. In many instances this represents a larger income than ever received by the member in his regular vocation. Added to this is the consideration that he is not wholly cut off from other activities.

Cabinet officers are paid $12,000. They are supposed to be, and generally are, men of achievement. Their responsibilities are great. As a rule men who accept cabinet positions do so at financial sacrifice, but are glad to accept. The honor is appreciated, and the opportunity to help an administration, or promote betterments for the country at large, are tempting to a high-minded citizen.

There is considerable talk of the $100,000 man. Heads of big industrial concerns are prone to say that they are looking for such a man, and would be glad to hire him. Naturally they could not hire him, for if his brains were worth $100,000 to an employer, they would be worth ten times that to the man himself, and he would use them for his own benefit.

Yet there are high salaries in this country. Actors in the screen world have drawn as much per week as a congressman draws per year. Baseball players are getting so they do not hesitate to ask $75,000 a year. One, Ruth, demands $10,000 above this figure.

It would seem only fair that when the government wants the services of the $100,000 man, it should protect him against too great a loss in consenting to serve. Yet the government pays no high salaries. The discrepancy is becoming so great that Uncle Sam may be cheating himself. A poor and inefficient official is dear at any price.

IN THE MATTER OF VINDICATION

Truman H. Newberry has been given a seat as United States senator from Michigan. He is said to view this as a vindication. If so, he is not taking the view of the public at large. A sustaining vote in the circumstances, is not a vindication. It is nothing but the assurance that a partisan majority has had its way regardless of any moral issue, or any question of justice.

Whether the opposition to Newberry used money illegally in conduct of the campaign is not a subject that needs to be considered. If there was wrong on both sides, the senate was not reduced to any necessity for making a choice between evils. It had the right, as it had the duty, of rejecting both.

Fair words condemnatory of the practice that won a victory, while according the victor the fruits of triumph, constitute a waste of breath. Holding one belief, and voting to uphold the contrary belief, affords room for a suspicion of insincerity.

Vast sums were expended on behalf of Newberry. The total went far above the amount designated by the law as proper. His statement that the free use of money had been without his knowledge was defective as an alibi.

The majority of senators have done exactly that which it had been predicted they would do. No thrill of pride is stirred by contemplation of the situation. There may, however, be the poor comfort of knowing that had circumstances been reversed, and the other party superior in numbers, the result would have presented exactly the ethical aspect that is beheld today.

While the retirement of Briand as premier of France came as a surprise, it is not regarded as in any sense vital. There are other able men in France. As to the effect upon the result of the disarmament conference, there seems to be no apprehension.

Friday the 13th, if the truth must be told, is about the same in its general attributes as any other day of the same season.

The Inventor as Wealth Producer

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Of all the business of men, production is the most important.

To manage, to direct, to transport and the like, are essential. But most essential of all is to produce.

DR. FRANK CRANE

In production the man works hand in hand with the Creator.

For this reason the farmer has always held a place of high esteem, because it is his business to make a hundred grains of wheat out of one.

And in like manner the poet, the novelist and the dramatist stand in the front rank of intellectual workers because they actually create and "give to airy nothings a local habitation and a name."

The greatest producer of all is Nature itself. In fact, Nature's fruitful womb ceaselessly brings forth plenty and to spare, for the needs of all life which she has made.

The tropics could easily feed the world, and probably will when transportation is perfect.

There is more to production, however, than the mere making of things or inducing growth. For it is also necessary to adapt things to human use and to bring them from the place of making to the user.

The greater part of Nature's products also need to be worked over. She is prolific in raw material. And it is the ingenuity of man that must change that raw material into a form which shall minister to life.

Therefore, the primary producer is, perhaps, the scientist, for he is the man who studies Nature's laws and lays the basis for the art of harnessing her foes and uncovering the treasures.

In the story of the Creation it is said that man was put in the Garden of Eden to tend it and keep it. This world might be called a vast and weedy garden, which it is man's business to render fruitful; the scientist is the foremost of the gardeners.

The scientist, however, is helpless without the inventor, who, using the gathered material of the scientist, actually tames Nature to man's use.

There never was a greater opportunity for invention than at the present day. The London General Omnibus company says that it is worth a fortune to any inventor who can save the company a penny a mile in petrol.

For that matter, any man who can save a moment or a penny to any great organization, achieves a triumph.

Amazing as the inventions of the past have been, there crowd upon us still more amazing inventions in the near future.

For instance, we await the genius who will bring out the conversion of solar rays to supplant the dwindling supplies of coal and petroleum.

The Desert of the Sahara, 6,000,000 square kilometres in area, daily receives a solar energy equivalent to that of 6,000,000,000 tons of coal. Where is the genius who will convert that radiant energy into electric current?

Dr. Arthur D. Little says that in a sun day of six hours a surface of 10,000 square kilometres receives in a year a quantity of heat corresponding to that produced by burning 3,650,000,000 tons of coal, which is more than double the entire world's production. Who will show us how to use that?

Even more wonderful is the vista opened by investigations of radiant energy. Kinetic energy is possessed not only by radium, but by ordinary matter.

The energy with which atoms are surcharged is of a higher order and magnitude than the energy derived from burning coal or liberated from the most powerful explosive.

We await the creative offices of the inventor who will show us how to utilize that.

THE LISTENING POST

There was one time a sea captain.

Whose course was mapped out by the owners of his vessel toward a certain port.

And he had charts and maps and sailing directions and a sextant and a compass and a chronometer.

And everything else necessary to voyaging on the sea.

* * *

Voyaging on the sea is different from voyaging on the land.

There are few landmarks, if the term be permitted.

Perhaps watermarks would be better.

For great waves of water rolling and rolling look alike.

You can't mark your course by a tree or a hill or a cross roads or anything like that.

* * *

Because the sea is fluid and has no permanence except as a fluid body.

There are no everlasting hills.

There are no mountains.

There is no permanent topography.

The landmarks or the watermarks of the sea are determinable only by the compass and the chronometer and sextant and the stars in the heavens.

* * *

The compass of the sea captain's vessel was accurate.

And the needle gave him the north.

With the slight variation he was able to calculate.

And if he had left the compass alone he would have reached the port the owners of his vessel wished him to gain.

* * *

But the captain thought of another port that was more pleasing to him.

And he determined to sail for that port instead.

So he devised a plan by which the needle of the compass was deflected from the north.

And by following the deflected needle he thought he would come to the port he wished.

He did as a great many men do in life.

He deliberately altered his direction.

By deflecting the needle of conscience or reason or whatever it may be.

And sailed for the port he wished instead of the one he was bound for rightly.

* * *

The little needle sought bravely to mark the true north.

But the device continued to deflect it.

And the captain of the vessel sailed as the false compass indicated.

* * *

And every time the captain looked at the compass he sought to comfort himself with specious reasoning.

And he said: "It must be the north for the compass says so."

And all the time he knew it was not the north.

And that he was lying to himself.

* * *

So with the false compass the false captain continued to steer for the port he wished.

All the time getting farther and farther from his true course.

And all the time lying oftener and oftener to himself.

Quieting his conscience, as the saying is.

* * *

All of his reckonings were made with the deflected needle as the basis of direction.

Every calculation of the captain was accurate.

But the basis of it all was wrong.

And as a consequence the ship drew out of its course.

* * *

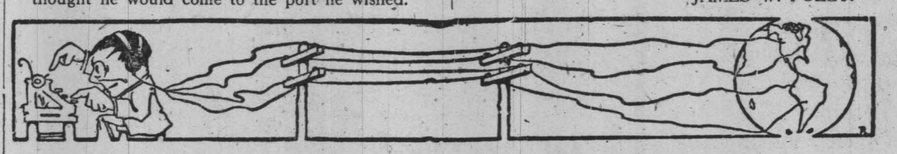
Just as many persons deliberately deflect the compass of conscience or reason or whatever it is.

And then seek to quiet themselves by lying to themselves.

And end the voyage on the rocks.

Just as the captain's ship did.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

My Star—By Robert Browning (1812-1889)

All that I know
Of a certain star
Is, it can throw
(Like the angled spar)
Now a dart of red,
Now a dart of blue,
Till my friends have said
They would fain see, too.
My star that dartles the red and the blue!
Then it stops like a bird; like a flower, hangs furled:
They must solace themselves with the Saturn above it.
What matter to me if their star is a world?
Mine has opened its soul to me; therefore I love it.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

It's courageous and fine to be able to say simply: "I cannot afford it," when such is the truth. It so often is in these trying days. No one whose opinion is to any degree worth having will think the less of us for it. Those who do we cannot afford to keep as friends.

Of course, its' true that Rochefoucauld, who, by the way, was full of bitter and cynical maxims, said: "To be successful one must have the appearance of success." But that's one of the half-truths which sound so plausible that they deceive even the very elect.

Keeping up appearances when the foundations are lacking is so apt to result in dire disaster. There can be no peace or contentment or mental health under such a condition. And the irony of the whole matter is that so often, having erected a card house of flimsy material, one sees it suddenly go tumbling down in ruins to the amusement of the very ones for which it has been erected.

One doesn't have to go about wailing, clad in sackcloth and ashes, when misfortune or poverty overtakes. Nor is it necessary to take the whole world into close confidence as to one's lacks and anxieties. Truth and bravery generally go together, and a brave outlook on life, coupled with wise effort, will build an edifice that not even the strongest winds of the heavens will raze.

It's foolish not to appear at our best. But between this and the keeping up of appearances to which false pride incites there's a deep gulf fixed. If we're wise, we won't cross.

EFFORTS TO FORCE PROSPERITY

[New York Commercial]

A southern farmer's organization has made the proposition that the war debt due the American government by the allied nations, amounting to some $10,000,000,000, be cancelled both as to principal and interest on condition that the sums due this government for loans during the world war be invested by these governments in the purchase of American raw agricultural products over a series of years, which products are vitally needed for food, raiment and the restoration of their manufacturing and commercial industries.

This is an ideal solution, but can hardly be worked out from a practical standpoint. In effect, our Liberty bond holders would have to look to the farmers of the country for reimbursement. These loans to foreign countries are represented largely by Liberty bonds and our government must redeem those bonds at maturity. It will mean taxation sufficient to raise $10,000,000,000 besides the intermediate taxation to pay the interest. Therefore, the people of this country must be taxed to buy the crops of the agricultural community so that we can make a present of them to these foreign debtors of ours. This money has been loaned to the government of the United States in the first instance by the purchasers of Liberty bonds. There are only two ways that the money can be returned to the lenders: One by the payment of principal and interest by the foreign borrowers and the other by taxation of our people. If this scheme is to be carried out, why should it be limited only to agricultural products? Why not lumber, steel and copper?

It is a mistaken theory to think that prosperity can be restored by artificial means. It is all well enough to talk of cancelling foreign debts, but that cannot be done without the consent of the original lenders, who happen to be the people of the United States who bought Liberty bonds. If these bondholders are willing to cancel their bonds, then the scheme will work out. Otherwise the burden will fall upon the people of this country. It will put us in a position of having won the war and then having to pay a tremendous indemnity.

The only practical solution is to fund these debts over a long term of years, thus relieving the immediate burden from the European countries and giving them an opportunity to re-establish themselves economically, in the course of which they must come to us for raw materials and our exports will move forward in a natural and orderly fashion. There is no reason why this country should pay for the war. Its expenditures, when it did go into the war, were in excess of those of any other country. We are not whimpering about this, but in return for it we have obtained nothing but the satisfaction of having finally put an end to the struggle. We have no accessions to our territory, no share in the reparations from Germany, and got only a temporary hectic prosperity.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Observing the progress of invention, every thoughtful person must concede the risk involved in terming any proposed achievement impossible.

HENRY JAMES

Many of the things that are commonplace now, a generation ago would confidently have been proclaimed impossible. The verdict would not have come from the ignorant. Scientists would have proclaimed it. They so proclaimed concerning aviation. They even took interest in so small an attainment as the pitching of a curved ball. They proved that such a ball could not be pitched. They continued to prove this after pitchers, lacking mostly, in college training, were sending the in-shoot, the out-shoot and the drop.

A few short decades ago the statement that melody could be printed on a disc, and released at will, would have excited pity rather than derision, but never a shadow of belief. A little earlier the telephone was a dream, and after that wireless communication not even a vague imagining.

Now a passenger on a train in Germany calls for a number exactly as he would in a telephone booth. By wireless his request is transferred to the regular lines strung overhead, and transmitted to the telephone exchange which puts him in communication with the number desired.

These are a few of the accomplishments of genius that make rash the attempt to set any limitation to what is yet to be done.

There seems to be every reason for believing that through the conference, Japan and China will come to complete understanding, and their future relations be conducted on a basis of justice.

There have been sneers and idle laughter, and much lying about the conference, but the truth sustains the gathering, and makes clear the nobility of the purpose inspiring it.

Felix Diaz is said to be heading a new revolutionary movement in Mexico. Diaz seems to be a thoroughly bad Mexican. The quicker he shall be caught and stood in front of a firing squad the better for his country.

There have been times since the regime of President Diaz, uncle of the insurgent, when revolution seemed to be justifiable. It was a toss-up whether the rebels were worse than the government. All this has been changed.

The present government of Mexico is being conducted along liberal and enlightened lines. Especial attention is being paid to observing and preserving the rights of the common people. Some of these people lack the gumption to know when they are well off, and so when Diaz, or other adventurer, sounds a call to arms, they fall in, to fight against their own interests.

The process of educating them receives definite impetus every time one of the false leaders is caught and shot.

It is stated that Lenine is not going to attend the conference at Genoa, and the report seems probable. It is unlikely that such a tyrant would dare leave the scene of his devastating triumph, for he would have no friend to guard his interests.

Lenine is the cat, and he would be rash to allow the swarm of mice a chance to play.

There seems a likelihood that a cabinet position or two may be abolished. If the work could be carried on as well after consolidation of departments, there would be no mourners.

Least of all would members of the cabinet object to being released from duties that most of them perform at distinct loss to themselves. They remain from a sense of obligation either as patriotic citizens or devoted partisans.

Two members of the cabinet have been offered places in the business world at salaries of $100,000. Others have in private life been accustomed to far more than official pay, and at least one is a man of such large fortune, that the question of pay could not well come within his consideration.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

My old friend Joe's young son Joe has just arrived at the most intolerable period of youth. He dresses like one of those quaint figures one sometimes sees in clothing store windows, he smokes a brand of cigarettes I detest, his hair is sleek as the hood of a new car, and he airs offensive opinions with an air of superiority to his father and his father's old fogy friends.

"He isn't worth a cuss," Joe says with a groan. "I don't know where he gets his foolishness from. Heaven knows I have always done my best for him. But he acts like a fool."

There is no doubt whatever that Joe is right in his estimate of Young Joe. But about this season of the year Father Joe always buys himself a line of new spats and some virulent canes and two or three of the snappiest suits he can coax his tailor to make for him and goes back to the old home town to visit his mother. During that visit he always takes his mother for a walk. By and by they walk past the residence of Warburton K. Neighbor, the local expressman. A sign on its front admits that Mr. Neighbor is a

"First rate hauler. Pianos and safes moved with care."

The reason for this pasear on the part of Father Joe and his mother is that in his youth he was about the same sort of a hair-brained prodigy that Young Joe is now. In those days Warburton K. Neighbor was the town's pride. Although but sixteen years old he had already accumulated a sort of a horse and a sort of a wagon and was doing what express hauling is done in that sort of a town. Father Joe's mother used to call his attention to Warburton K. Neighbor with many and bitter words.

"Why don't you behave yourself like little Warby?" she used to ask him, sorrowfully. "That boy is a joy to his mother——"

It does Father Joe a good deal of good to indicate by indirection to his mother that in spite of the many and noisy sins of his youth he now bulks larger in the world's eye than does that paragon of manly virtue, Warburton K. Neighbor.

But so far as I have been able to find out he has said nothing about Mr. Neighbor to his young son.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

The exact quota of representatives in congress to which each state is theoretically entitled on the basis of population usually involves a fraction. The problem of replacing these exact quotas by whole numbers in such a way that the resulting injustice, due to the adjustment of the fractions, shall be as small as possible has been a subject of violent debate in congress for a hundred years, besides engaging the attention of able mathematicians and economists.

FATHERS' NIGHT WAS BIG SUCCESS

The Doran Street Parent-Teacher association had its first fathers' night Friday evening and so well was the function patronized that the refreshment committee had to go out and buy extra supplies. The best of it all was that the fathers had so good a time that they asked the mothers to have these nights often.

The program was given entirely by the children and included songs recitations, fancy dances and piano solos.

Howard Benner, the newly appointed scout executive, was the speaker of the evening and told of the benefits of boy scout work, and was followed by Charles Chandler, president of the Glendale scout council, who talked along the same line.

Oliver Clark, as chairman of the committee appointed at the Doran street mass meeting to negotiate with the city council relative to the improvement of streets abutting on the Doran school campus and other school sites of the city, reported a conference with councilmen Thursday evening at which time the council voted to reject all bids for the contemplated street improvements abutting on the school.

In the social hour which followed the program, refreshments of pie and coffee were served to the parents and cake and cookies to the children present.

MARGUERITE FINN MARRIED SATURDAY

A very pretty wedding was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Finn, 218 East Garfield avenue, when their daughter Marguerite Finn was married to Edward Wentworth of Los Angeles, formerly of Massachusetts. Rev. Father James O'Neill officiating. The ceremony took place in front of the fireplace, which was banked with pink carnations and ferns.

The bride wore a peach canton crepe gown, combined with chocolate brown chiffon velvet and carried a bouquet of violets. The only attendants were Miss Estelle Murphy of Los Angeles who wore a gown of black chiffon velvet and also carried violets, and Marcelus Doll of Glendale. Only members of the immediate family witnessed the ceremony. The occasion was also the silver wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, and many beautiful and useful gifts were received by both.

Mrs. Wentworth was formerly connected with the H. W. Hellman bank in Los Angeles and is financial secretary of the Glendale Y. L. I. Mr. Wentworth is connected with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at Los Angeles. The young couple left for a short wedding trip of one week and will make their home in Los Angeles.

MISS SHATTUCK IS HONORED AT PARTY

Mrs. Ellis Thomas opened her pretty new home at 212 East Palmer avenue Saturday afternoon to a group of young brides and other friends of Miss Leone Shattuck, who will soon become the bride of Emil Kiefer and also to meet Mrs. Donald Ross Eck of Casper, Wyo., who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ingledue, 501 East Wilson avenue. Tea towels were hemmed for the bride-elect and a beautifully decorated basket containing hand painted china was presented to Miss Shattuck.

Mrs. Thomas was assisted in serving refreshments by her sister, Miss Helen Ingledue and Miss Mary Rich. A tour was then made of the pretty new bungalow home, into which Mrs. Thomas has just moved. The guests were Biss Leone Shattuck and Mrs. Donald Ross Eck, guests of honor; Mrs. C. E. Shattuck, mother of the bride-elect, Miss Agnes Brown, the Misses Dorothy and Eunice Peart, Miss Juanita Emery, Miss Mary Rick, Miss Laura Roberts, Miss Helen Ingledue, Mrs. Dorothy Weller, Mrs. Wilbur Lee, Mrs. Candace Lemar, Mrs. Clark Christy, Mrs. Jesse Flower, Mrs. Edwin Murphy, Mrs. Carl Seiter, Mrs. Sarah Thomas and Mrs. C. WORTHY GRAND MATRON A VISITOR

Three chapters of the Order of the Eastern Star, Glen Eyrie of this city, Burbank and Eagle Rock chapters, united Friday night at the Masonic temple to receive for her official visit the worthy grand matron of the state of California, Mrs. Maude Bradley, and her associate, Past Grand Patron Pearce of Los Angeles, who represented the worthy grand patron of the state.

Presiding in the East were Mrs. Fannie M. Parke, worthy matron, and Harry Le Roy Redd, worthy patron.

Marshal Blanche L. Davenport first escorted to the chapter room after the chapter had been formally opened, past matrons and patrons of the chapter and the distinguished visitors, who were officially introduced. The grand officers were then escorted to the East by the marshal and received with official honors.

For their benefit the work of the chapters was exemplified and was complimented by Mrs. Bradley, who made an address in which she exhorted chapter officials to worthily live up to their high privileges and responsibilities.

An adjournment was then taken to the banquet hall below, where refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to the assembled company, which numbered between 300 and 400. The tables were decorated with poinsettias. An informal good time completed the evening.

Women Take Prominent Part in Washington Official Life

Miss Mary Anderson.

Women are taking a prominent part in official life at the nation's capital these days, and it is quite natural that a woman should head the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department. This is Miss Mary Anderson, who heads that bureau, and she is one of the two women holding bureau chiefs' positions under the Federal Government.

JUNIOR MUSIC CLUB MET SATURDAY

The Junior Auxiliary of the Glendale Music club met Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Spencer Robinson, 1234 East Windsor road. Part of the program for next Friday evening, January 20, which will be given before the Senior auxiliary, was rehearsed. This meeting will be open to the public.

Mrs. Robinson, who is the director of this section, is anxious that the young people should have a full house to show the appreciation of their work that they have accomplished in so short a time. It will also inspire the young people to do bigger things in the future and they should be encouraged by all. The numbers on the program will be published later, as well as the date of the next Junior auxiliary meeting. After the program had been rehearsed games were enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostess.

MISS PANKHURST TO GIVE ADDRESS

Miss Cristobal Pankhurst, world-famous suffragette, who was one of the hunger strikers in the long campaign waged for votes for women in England, is to be the speaker at the monthly banquet on Wednesday evening of the federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, which is to be entertained at Pasadena by the Women's Business club of that city, at the Shakespeare club house.

Miss Pankhurst's lecture itinerary is under the management of Mr. Behymer, and as she is a bright, particular star in the world of enfranchised women, there is a big demand for the tickets.

She is a young woman of beauty and charm and immense vitality.

TROOP TWO IS GIVEN ITS HOME

read, in which he expressed his regret because unable to attend the dedication and promised the troop a flagpole 20 to 25 feet high, and was followed by applause.

Favorite scout songs which were epic in character—"Ivan Skavitski Skavar," "There Was a Mule," and "Clementine," were sung with enthusiasm. Yells were given for "America," for "Father," for "Mother" and for "Chandler."

C. L. Chandler, president of the scout council, responded to call with a few words in which he expressed his great interest in the troop and said the credit for the cabin clubhouse was due first of all to the father and son, Benjamin Robinson, Sr., and Benjamin Robison, Jr., and next to the boys of the troop; that it was a demonstration of the practical character of scout work. He spoke of the recent re-organization of a first-class scout council, covering Glendale, Burbank and Eagle Rock, and of the campaign of publicity soon to be put on with a view to raising a budget to finance the work. He referred to Mr. Benner, who has been elected scout executive, and who returns to Glendale after an absence of several years, in which he has made a fine record at the University of Tucson, Arizona. In closing, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Chandler he welcomed the guests of the evening and assured them they would always be welcome whenever they chose to come out to the scout cabin.

Mr. Benner spoke later, addressing the boys more than the parents, assuring them that such a physical demonstration of what scout work will accomplish was a great inspiration to him. He complimented the troop on having 12 Eagle scouts, an honor which no other troop in California enjoys, and expressed his pleasure in the privilege of working with them.

The second half of the program took place around another and bigger camp fire out of doors, where stunts or playlets, were put on by the patrols. Before the audience adjourned to the beautiful moonlit out of doors, attention was called to a printed list of the most urgent needs of the corps, and before the evening closed these had all been met. Mrs. Packard had volunteered to provide curtains for the cabin windows; Mrs. Frankie Webb had given a teakettle; A. S. Webb had promised a portable, suitcase phonograph; Mrs. Sawyer had given a rug, and Mrs. Edith Osborne a check for $5.

The playlets were pure, unadulterated comedy, which, by their very absurdity and simplicity, were intensely amusing to the parents and friends assembled. The first, which was put on by the Wolf patrol, was "The Abduction of the Grocer's Daughter." It was followed by "The Honest Judge," put on by the Pine Tree patrol in two acts. "Daredevil Dick, the Movie Producer, in Davenport, Africa," put on by the Whip-poor-wills, was even more ambitious, showing the director, the cameraman and the wild beasts photographed, including an elephant, which later made the circuit of the ring around the fire. The last number, "Ho, for the Mulligan Slum," was a spirited illustrated song, sung by the Stag patrol.

The recitation of the scout oath, singing of "America," and a brief prayer by Ben Robison, Jr., closed the exercises of a unique evening which had been thoroughly enjoyed.

Following is a list of leaders and members:

Benjamin Robison, Sr., scoutmaster; Benjamin Robison, Jr., assistant scoutmaster; Thomas Wood, senior patrol leader; other patrol leaders, Arthur Barton, Leslie Hatch, Arthur Wetton and Wilfred Jackson; Clifford Walcott, scribe. Other members—Richard Ambrosch, Davis Chandler, Douglas Gregg, John Faries, Rosso Graham, Jack Packard, Floyd Traft, Bob Hatch, Claud Streight, Charles Mambert, Dallas Kalbaugh, Horace Brown, Charles Kaussin, Robert McReynolds, Kenneth Miles, Donald Morrow, Warren Rigdon, Dave Roberts, Henry Sawyer, Robert Eastman, Elvin Richards, Franklin Walcott, Richard Walcott, Frank Thompson, Wilbur Booth and Harold Jones.

It is probable that quite a delegation of members of the Business Women's club of this city wll attend. Members can secure reservations for plates and transportation by telephoning Dr. Caroline Payne Jackman of this cty.

What may be rightly termed one of the most finished and artistic productions yet seen on the screen is the foreign film, "Gypsy Blood," adapted from Prosper Merimee's immortal "Carmen," which opened an engagement at the T. D. & L. theater last night.

Pola Negri is seen in the role of La Carmencita, and this latest vehicle demonstrates that this wonderful star from across the ocean is an artist of the first rank.

In "Passion," in which Pola Negri made her debut on the American screen, she was a marvel. In "Gypsy Blood" she portrays the fiery little cigarette girl as the role has never been portrayed before.

Twice before has Carmen been filmed, but the eye was not deceived then. This time, however, a photodrama that deserves to be called an epic of the screen has been accomplished.

Pola Negri is a great emotional actress. ith fire and temperament the Polish star throws herself into the part so realistically that she actually seems to be living in it.

This triumph of the motion picture is shared by Ernst Lubitsch, a wizard of production, who also directed Pola Negri in her previous success, and by the members of the cast supporting the star. Harry Leidtke gives a splendid characterization of the Spanish dragoon who falls a victim to the charms of the alluring Carmencita.

The photography is magnificent, as is the general technique of the production. American producers can learn a big lesson from it.

Re-edited and re-titled by Myron M. Stearns, "Gypsy Blood" is released by Associated First National Pictures, Inc. If First National has anything more like it, let's have it.

Wallace Reid, popular Paramount star, has an unusually fine role in his new picture, "Rent Free," which comes to the T. D. & L. theater tomorrow. He is seen as a hard-up artist, and beautiful Lila Lee is his leading woman. The comedy is scoring heavily everywhere.

SUBSTITUTE BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A compromise in the dispute between President Harding and the senate farm bloc over the bill to put a "dirt farmer" on the federal reserve board was reached today with the introduction of a substitute bill in the senate by Senator Kellogg, Minnesota.

CHATS WITH MARTHA ALICIA

YOU WILL DO WELL to call the GLENDALE PLUMBING CO. of 134 S. Orange St. before having your plumbing installed! Mr. Sheehy is known for his expert workmanship and reasonable prices—and then, too, you may be assured that when he is in charge of the installation it will be properly done—and done to last! So many people think only of expense—not of the durability and lasting value of the work!—but that is not wise, for in but a few short years you'll find it necessary to replace the whole business—and that's very expensive! The Glendale Plumbing Co. use only the very best of materials—and employ only skilled workmen—hence their work is absolutely guaranteed to be above reproach! They also carry a full line of fine fixtures—most reasonably priced!

I should advise you to form a habit of just phoning the Glendale Plumbing Co. when anything "goes wrong" with your plumbing—for they'll be able to fix it properly and at the lowest possible cost to you! Try them.

David and Jonathan

By JOHN BRECK

It was the young person who goes to school who first fell in love with "the mother dog that lives in the place where the hedge is so high." It seemed that the dog would escort certain children—among whom the young person was proud to be numbered—the full length of the hedge and then gallop back to greet another favored one. But, friendly as she was, she would permit no one to lay a hand on the pup which tagged at her heels.

A second report announced that the beautiful big dog was not a mother but a father. He took almost maternal care of his little son, licking and polishing him about the goal posts of his own four shaggy legs. "He even lets the little one eat the meat out of the sandwiches we give him," she averred. "Then he eats the bread."

Now paternal affection is not unknown in dogs. I once knew an Irish terrier who made a laughing-stock out of a man who boasted he had nothing but registered animals on his farm. Paddy insisted on completing the family picture presented by this gentleman's blue-ribbon collie with her litter of puppies which were certainly not eligible for registration. Paddy's claim on them was absurdly obvious.

But a single glance exploded theory also. These two were not even remotely akin, one being a tiny cherry cocker spaniel, and the other an enormous St. Bernard. It was a clear case of David and Jonathan; they looked more like David and Golieth, I thought, but that was because I had reversed their names.

For the next bulletin reported that the big dog had disappeared. His unhappy little comrade was meeting the children, shyly as usual, but disturbingly insistent that something was wrong. A grown-up might not have understood him, but small folk rely less implicitly on the spoken word. They took counsel with the man who trims that hedge; then they followed, in a body, where little Jonathan was ready to lead.

Out to the wilderness of the back field he took them. There, huddled in a thicket, David lay. He had been struck by an automobile; dog-fashion, he had crept away to await his fate in solitude.

What was it? A very cheerful one. Now he is limping about, almost as good as new; he gets his sandwiches, meat and all. But I'd like to know how many families besides our own put up an extra sliver of ham for Joanthan.

I CAN'T IMAGINE ANYTHING any nearer heaven than a wonderful hammock, a good book and a great, big piece of that delicious chocolate cake from the FANCY BAKERY, 142 N. Brand Blvd.! It is positively the most wonderful cake I've ever tasted—and I know you'll agree with me that it is the really, truly, home-made variety which we all love! The chocolate layer cakes are most reasonably priced—and (a fact that interests me greatly)—they're frosted entirely! For birthday parties, weddings or club luncheons you'll find it decidedly to your advantage to simply call the Fancy Bakery and let them design and bake a beautiful cake that's appropriate for the occasion! And, oh! my dear, I forgot to tell you of the perfectly delicious Sunshine Cake which is a specialty at the Fancy Bakery—they're almost like angel cake—just as light and fluffy as possible—and very reasonable! When guests drop in of an evening—the Fancy Bakery will be the solution of your problem—"What shall I give them to eat?"

IF YOU'RE HOMELESS—here is just the place for you! JAMES W. PEARSON of 108 N. Brand Blvd. is offering a dandy six-room California house—well situated on a good-sized lot with a garage and 20 fruit trees—for only $2900! Think of it—and of that only $500 must be cash—and the balance to be paid off at the rate of $150 every three months! Yes, and that includes interest, too!

When you have veal loaf serve either pickled peaches or spiced crabapples with it. The combination is fine.

OH! YOU'RE JUST ALL IN after a day of shopping around town—and I don't blame you one bit for not wanting to go home and cook lunch—it's too tiresome! But I'd stop in at the ELITE SWEET SHOP, 134 S. Brand Blvd., if I were you—for they serve a delicious merchants' lunch from 11 till 2—for only 45c! And I know that you'll simply enjoy every bite—for everything at the Elite is home-cooked—from beginning to end! And—sh! a word to the wise—don't, whatever you do, fail to try some of their wonderful home-baked pie—it is the best I've ever tasted! The menu is changed each day—so that you'll find it a charming bit of variety from your own style!

BEHOLD STUPIDITY JANE! I don't know what you must think of me for sending you 'way off in the wrong direction in quest of GEORGINNE'S LINGERIE SHOP! It's really located at 1016 S. Glendale Ave.—and the phone is Glendale 281-W. But once there, you'll be well rewarded—for veritable visions of loveliness are the dainty georgette and silk under things—teddies, gowns, combinations and bloomers which are on display! Hand made, most of them are, too—but oh! so reasonably priced!

Delicious filling for layer cake is made by mixing a pound of finely minced shelled almonds with two eggs, a cup of confectioner's sugar and a teaspoon of vanilla.

TODAY IN MY JOURNEYINGS through the shops I've paid especial attention to things for the home—necessities of the household that it will be to your advantage to look up! For instance—there's that old mattress — I'm bringing you word of a shop where you may have it completely renovated and made over; or, there's the plumbing problem — one that needs expert service to solve; and, again—you may wish to invest in real estate—here's a real opportunity—or, when you're at a loss to know just what to serve in the evening—just come with me to the bakeries about town! Thus, you'll find, from day to day, the solutions of your problems of "where to go"—"what to do" or "what to serve"! Here, in these columns will be suggestions that are planned to help the housewife in her pleasurable duty of home-making!

It is easily applied—especially prepared to meet the most exacting requirements on automobiles, porch furniture or the like—and it will spread smoothly and evenly, drying quickly with a brilliant lustre! A machine may be retouched in spots or it may be entirely refinished in much less time than has heretofore been required! And, too, it comes in a wide variety of colors—particularly pleasing to the eye of the discriminating motorist! Ask Mr. Stevens about Patton's Auto Gloss!

LEVEE REPAIRED PROTECTS LANDS

City Puts Men on Repair Work to Prevent Further Damage

The levee on the Ross and Thom ranch that has been the cause of several complaints being filed with city officials, has been repaired and all danger from flood water is ended.

During recent storms the levee broke and several property owners adjoining the Ross and Thom ranch complained to City Manager Reeves and other officials that the break in the levee had diverted flood waters onto their property. Members of the council and City Manager Reeves visited the ranch and inspected the levee, and, after a conference with Judge Ross, it was decided that the city put a gang of men to work repairing the levee and that the owner of the property supply the material.

Heavy timbers were put in along the levee and a barricade of planks erected behind these timbers, with a supporting layer of brush and rock in back. In front of the barricade a ten-foot ditch was dug to carry away surplus waters and the dirt from the ditch was used to cover the brush and rock.

The job is completed and is the best insurance possible against future breaks in the levee. It would be almost a physical impossibility for the levee to break now and in the event that it gives way, the ditch would carry off a great portion of the flood water.

TWO GUNMEN FLEE WITHOUT BREAKFAST

DETROIT, Jan. 16. — Four prisoners, including two of the city's most notorious gunmen, fled to freedom from the house of correction today. The men made their escape while being marched to breakfast. They slid out of the breakfast line and hid in an ante room, after which they battered down the bars and dashed to liberty.

GUESS CONTEST AT NEALE-GREGG

If you saw a window full of saws would you stop to count the number of teeth in the saws? Of course you would not. But if there were several prizes offered it would be different.

The hardware firm of Neale & Gregg has a window full of saws on display this week and offer severau prizes for the nearest correct count of the number of teeth in all the saws. There are large saws, small saws, medium saws and just plain saws. The prizes are a sugar and cream set, a safety razor, an alarm clock and a baseball glove.

The contest will close on Wednesday night and the judges will announce the winner as soon as a count and check of the answers can be made. The judges for the contest are Thomas D. Watson, D. Ripley Jackson, Dave Crofton and William Moore.

DANCE TICKETS ARE GOING FAST

Tickets to the first informal dance of the Shrine club of Glendale are finding a ready sale. They are limted to 400, and of this number, more than half have been sold already. Admission to the dance to be held on Wednesday night in the assembly hall of the chamber of commerce, is to Shriners and their frends only. This is ers and their friends only. This is the first dance to be given by the recently organized club. Others will follow during the season.

If it's a good offer it will pay to make it through the classified advertising columns.

SEATTLE MAYOR FILES BIG CHARGE

Leaves at Once for Orient After Letting "Cat Out of Bag"

SEATTLE, Jan. 16.—Charges that an "inner bond ring" conspired against the city and made $198,000 out of the recent $3,200,000 Skagit tunnel project were filed by Mayor Caldwell shortly before he sailed with a delegation of Shriners for the Orient Saturday.

The mayor demanded an immediate investigation. The evidence upon which Caldwell based his charges was obtained from Edward W. Hesse, member of the firm of D. D. Deluca and company of San Francisco.

"If these charges had been made to me prior to my signing the Skagit river bonds I would not have put my name to them," Caldwell said.

Hesse declared his firm would construct the George creek tunnel for $553,000 less than the price at which the contract was let to R. C. Storrie and company of San Francisco. He claimed that his firm was prevented from bidding on the contract because of the terms imposed by the bond dealers.

BIG AUDIENCE FOR FIRST TWILIGHT PROGRAM

Musical Gems by Talented Artists Heard Sunday at Twilight

That the public appreciated the treat promised by Harry Girard in the series of "twilight recitals" to be given Sunday afternoons at the Glendale theater, was demonstrated when the program opened at 4 p. m. on Sunday, with an audience of not less than 500 in attendance.

Enthusiastic interest was manifested from the start and increased as the program advanced, climaxing in quite an ovation of applause for Mr. Girard and for Father James O'Neill, pastor of the Holy Family Cathlic church, who addressed the gathering and in happy phrase, thanked Mr. Girard, "Bill" Howe as the theater manager, the artists, and the patrons, voicing his own pleasure in the event and the fact that the church is being backed by so large a percentage of the community in its efforts to provide a fine organ for the handsome new edifice at Elk and Louise streets.

In acknowledging the compliments heaped upon him, Mr. Girard expressed his own happiness in the success of the concert and invited the audience to join him and the artists in a cup of coffee at his home on Colorado after the performance.

A goodly number accepted the invitation and in the neighborhood of 75 music lovers gathered to greet the artists and to enjoy a supplementary program, not to speak of the delicious refreshments served by host and hostess.

The program at the theater opened with a very beautiful instrumental duet in which Harry Girard presided at the piano and Paul Carson at the organ. It prepared the audience for the fine numbers that followed, including:

Vocal duet, Mr. and Mrs. Girard, "Nocturne" (Cecil Chaminade); "Mother Love" by Harry Girard; "Passage Bird's Farewell" (Eugene Hildach).

Recitation of poems by James Foley, Alma Murphy Halff, which were very well done.

Balads sung by Carl Cantvoort, "For You Alone" (Henry E. Geehe); "Golden Crown," a negro spiritual, (H. L. Gantvoort); and "Danny Deever" (Kipling-Demrosch).

Vocal solos, "For All Eternity" (Mascaroni), by Miss Truly Shattuck, who responded to applause with the encore number, "Give Me Your Smile."

Vocal solos, James Burroughs' "Pale Moon" by Frederick Knight-Logan, and "Nobody Knows" (Negro Spiritual).

Recitation — "Hiawatha," by Frank Egan, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. H. D. Ryus.

Solos by Harry Girard, "Dio Possinti" from Faust (Gounod), and "The Road to Mandelay," words by Kipling, music by Speaks.

Grand finale, the sextette from "Lucia' (Donnozetti) by all the vocalists with Mrs. Ryus at the piano and Paul Carson at the organ.

MISS RYAN HOSTESS AT SATURDAY PARTY

Miss Ruth Ryan of 382 West Acacia avenue entertained Saturday night at a dinner party, covers being laid for eight guests. Table decorations were pink and white and were carried out in pink and white sweet peas, baby's breath and fern. Place cards were hand-painted rosebuds and tiny pink nut baskets were used as favors.

The guests included Miss Ruth Howard, Miss Betty Mock, Miss Isabel Yates and the hostess, Miss Ruth Ryan; Messrs. Henry Clinton Bernarr Dennison, Robert J. Corrigan, and Donovan Yates. After dinner the party motored to Venice where an evening of dancing was enjoyed.

PLUM IS READY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Senators Kenyon and Cummins, Iowa, today asked Attorney General Daugherty to break a deadlock between them over appointment of a federal judge in the state. The judgeship was offered to Kenyon, who declined it and suggested another candidate and the two senators have been unable to agree.

A spoiled child is to be pitied. Also its parents.

ONE KILLED WHEN PLANE GOES WILD

Home-Made Throttle Is Cause Say Experts Who Investigate

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 16.—The plunge of a pilotless airplane into a throng of skaters on the Shradbury river, which resulted in the death of a woman and the serious injury of a man who tried to save her, was believed by investigators today to have been caused by the unexpected opening of a home-made throttle. The airplane, in which James Casey, ex-army aviator, was giving joy rides from the ice yesterday, leaped over its restraining blocks when the pilot whirled the propeller to start. A gust of wind turned the roaring plane straight into a group of nearly 1000 skaters, who had gathered to watch the start.

JAKE'S DAUGHTER TO GO IN MOVIES

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Olive Belle Hamon, daughter of the late Jake L. Hamon, is going into the movies. Olive Belle, who is just 12 years old, stole away from her home and visited a studio where she was "screened" for the first time. Her mother, the former Mrs. Hamon, now the bride of William L. Rohrer, retired capitalist, is expected to give her consent to the child's ambition. The little girl is a talented musician.

Ouch! Lame Back
Rub backache, Lumbago, Soreness and stiffness away - Try this!

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

CHICAGO READS ALL OF BEST BOOKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 16. — Chicago leads the world in demand for good books. This was the statement of Carl B. Roden, city librarian, in commenting on his annual report for 1921.

"We have had to double and treble the number of copies of some of the recognized masterpieces of world literature," declared Roden.

Only fiction which includes the "best sellers of the ages" and the modern "best sellers," exceeds in popularity works in the classics, and historical and autobiographical literature.

Fifty-six percent of the readers call for fiction.

"This increased use of good literature is not the result of propaganda," Roden added. "It simply indicates that our citizens have become educated to the need for things worth while in literature."

Circulation of books for the year surpassed all other previous records, with approximately 8,000,000 for 1921, according to the report.

EVIL DESTROYS ITSELF ALWAYS

First Clause of Lord's Prayer Is Taken as Theme

Preluding his lecture, "Evil Destroys Itself," Dr. Frank Riley, from a metaphysical viewpoint, explained, briefly, the first clause of the Lord's prayer, "Our Father Who art in Heaven." Heaven, as we were taught in early childhood, was a place far beyond our vision or understanding; a place where God and the angels reigned; but we now know that it is a state of consciousness. Illustration: Two persons are sitting side by side, listening to the same discourse or musical selection; one is in heaven, enjoying health, mental peace, harmonious surroundings and all the good in life; the other person is in hell, living a life of discomfort, anxiety and fear, taking little comfort in things beautiful surrounding him.

Before the establishment of modern religions, Jesus said, "Behold, the kingdom of God is within you." Jesus was not a sectarian for he preached on mountain top, in the valley, field, synagogues or any place where people congregated. He was the greatest Master that ever lived. He is not God.

When we open the door of our consciousness to the realization of the divine will, then will the Christ spirit which is within evolve, unfold like the petals of the rose—the symbol of "the smile of God"—then will truth and power be manifested to the seeking mind; then shall we realize that the kingdom of heaven—the reign of good—is within the soul.

All allegory has a lesson behind it and a truth in it. The easy way to teach spiritual things is by allegory or story. We are all children and a lesson or moral in a story is easier to grasp than is the hidden mysteries it contains. Our Bible is filled with stories and allegories and should not be taken literally. The Bible is historical as well as allegorical, the two being closely interwoven.

Thousands of years ago, people were divided into three classes—working, educated and priests. The best method of teaching the working classes was by allegories, for these people not being educated could not be instructed otherwise than by stories, and to this day thousands of people are taught by allegories. Many of the stories in our Bible are found in other bibles written many years B. C. The story of the whale is found in ten others, that of Mary Magdalene was written in the Sanscrit language long B. C. Much of our Bible is borrowed from the Chinese 500 years B. C. When the Bible is understood allegorically, all religious will be united.

The story of the passing through the Red sea was read and explained allegorically and a "Hymn to the Panet-God" was read and explained.

We are all bondsmen in matter but we must be a "Moses" and get out, look forward, walk straight ahead. If troubles arise before you, keep on, turn not back. Master your own conditions, then you will walk on dry land.

New Thought teaches truth, harmony, peace, health, prosperity and fearlessness, but to be successful, the lessons must be brought into practical everyday life. The closing thought was taken from Romans 12:1-2.

DRAMA OF CROSS WAS PICTURED

Rev. Edmonds Talks on Crucified Christ in Sermon

At the Presbyterian church Sunday morning Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached from the words in Gal. 3:1: "Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth crucified among you;" that is, vividly portrayed as on the cross. An outline follows:

"Evidently" implies evidence. Paul had before set forth to these people with such earnestness and thoroughness the facts of Christ crucified that they could see them with their own eyes. The whole history of Jesus Christ's trial and death lends itself to the highest and truest dramatic art. May we this day feel we have seen Him in the flesh.

First, Eden, and the first parents, fallen, shrinking in nakedness, seeking because of dreadful sin to hide from the Creator who would companion them. God made for them garments of skins, sacrificing the innocent animals to furnish them. In symbol here was the cross in Eden. Next, a worship scene. One is at his best when upon his knees. Cain comes with beautiful fruit and flowers for an offering, but God will not recognize it; a sacrifice for sin is not for beauty; it is awful. And Abel's acceptable offering had no beauty about it but it confessed sin.

Pass on to another age of time. See the ark left stranded on a mountain side; see Noah's little company of eight come forth and gaze over the scene of the flood's desolation and death. The first thing Noah does is to build an altar; lambs from those he has saved are brought and sacrificed; and God speaks and sets His rainbow of covenant in the sky. And therein Christ spoke. Five centuries more have passed; the world has been started anew, but again men have forgotten their Maker.

Come on down another 500 years. Abraham's descendants are down in Egypt, now become slaves, but the hour of their deliverance has come. They have made ready to go out. The angel of death is to strike every house of the oppressing Egyptians; but in every house of Israel a lamb has been slain and its blood sprinkled on the doorposts, "and when I see the blood I will pass over you."

Go down now into the valley of the Jordan. See John the Baptist, a new messenger with a great new message, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." The hope of the ages is coming. And finally let us go to Patmos, with old John the apostle. With him look through the open gates to the new Jerusalem; behold there the "Lamb as it had been slain;" hear the new song, "Thou art worthy—for Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood." Yes, even in heaven it will still be Jesus Christ evidently set forth crucified among a redeemed host; we will see his scars and wounds received for our redemption.

NEGRO WON HIGH LITERARY AWARD

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Rene Maran, a Martinique negro, has just been awarded the Prix Goncourt, the highest prize which can fall to a French writer outside the charmed circle of the Immortals of the French Academy. It is the first time since the foundation of the prize more than half a century ago that a writer of negro blood has won it. The brothers, Goncourt, Edmund and Jules, typified the revolt of the young writers of the sixties and seventies against the traditions of the French Academy. They demanded originality.

PRESIDENT WILL TAKE SQUINT NOW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The second anniversary of national prohibition finds President Harding and other high members of the administration much concerned over the widespread violations of the dry law. The President, it is known, is contemplating an exhaustive investigation to determine why public sentiment in many communities throughout the nation permits the law to be so flagrantly violated.

NO BENEFIT WOULD RESULT IN PLAN ANNEXATION

Plan Holds Nothing of Interest to Property Holders Here

Glendale's old proposition, "annex or not annex," is being resurrected and the city is lining up in two factions, the "pro's" and the "anti's." The proposition so far has only taken the form of discussion, but members of the anti-annexation party realize that discussion can rapidly crystalize into action toward merging with Los Angeles, and are declaring themselves against the plan and explaining why annexation to Los Angeles is not desirable. The "anti's" summarize their reasons for opposing the move this way:

Glendale does not need Los Angeles in any way. Los Angeles has nothing to offer this city in return for the rich territory to be gained in the event of a merger. All that Los Angeles can offer Glendale is the privilege of assisting that city to pay off its bonded indebtedness, which is a large sum. Glendale has a highly efficient municipal government and the people are satisfied. Were this city to merge with Los Angeles, this independent, municipal government would be wiped out and Glendale would become a portion of Los Angeles with a small voice in the city government—not even a squeak. This would take on the semblance of a "small voice in the heart of a wilderness." The result would be a case of Glendale being run by a group of politicians for the good of outside interests. Glendale would not have sufficient votes in the Los Angeles city council to secure any of the needed improvements.

When the question of annexation was discussed some time ago, annexationists said to merge with Los Angeles and the sewer question would be taken care of. This promise turned many anti-annexationists in favor of the merger. Recently Los Angeles, through a statement by the city sewer commission, city engineers and sewage experts from the east, who inspected the Los Angeles sewer system, made that promise worthless. The committee reported that Los Angeles' sewer system is inadequate to care for the sewage of that city alone, and that Los Angeles could not for a long time give outlying territory relief in the matter of sewage disposal.

Glendale is planning a sewage disposal system that, when installed, will take care of the sewage for many years. This proposition will be put to a vote of the people in the near future.

The promise of an improved street car service has also been made if Glendale goes into Los Angeles. By visiting the territories that have already become a part of Los Angeles under the same proposition, the emptiness of that promise will be proved. Improver street care service and a lower rate was promised them. Nothing has ever been done. Hollywood was promised improved car service and a better rate, yet when the Pacific Electric recently increased fares, Hollywood was included in the list of cities to pay an increased rate.

Glendale has a municipally owned water plant as well as a light and power plant. In the event of annexation, these would be abandoned and Glendale would be served by the companies that are serving Los Angeles, and would pay considerably more for such service.

Last but not least, Glendale has a police and fire department that are highly efficient. Annexation with Los Angeles would mean disbanding these two departments and the city would be policed by the Los Angeles department. It is a certainty that Los Angeles would not have as many men on duty as there are now.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

A SONG OF THE RAIN

Upon the roof it patters down,
From all along the eaves it pours,
The lights are misted over town
When I peer through the dark outdoors.
There is fresh coolness in the air,
And drip, drip, drip down from the tree,
And I stand long and look out there
Because it kind o' comforts me.

I like it when it patters down,
A gentle, steady drip and pour;
I like the misty lights of town
That I see from my open door.
The grass all moist and fresh out there,
The shimmering walk, the dripping tree,
I like to look and get my share,
Because it kind o' comforts me.

It's not that I am sad at all,
It's not that anything's gone wrong,
But something in the splash and fall
And patter soothes me like a song.
It's snug and warm inside and light,
It's cosy as a place can be,
But just to look out through the night,
Somehow it kind o' comforts me.

And hour by hour it patters down,
A steady, gentle drip and pour.
The lights are mistier over town
And darkness grows from more to more.
The hedge has many a shimmering leaf,
Drops splash and patter in the tree,
They seem as tears might seem, in grief,
Just kind o' soothe and comfort me.

BURCH JURY MAY BE DISCHARGED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—The jury in the trial of Arthur C. Burch for alleged murder of John Belton Kennedy probably will be dismissed by nightfall unless a verdict is agreed on. The jury today was reported standing 10 to 2 for conviction. Twenty-two ballots had been taken.

"We are ready to prosecute again, at once, if the jury disagrees," said District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine.

FRED HAGIN GIVES FINE ADDRESS AT LOCAL CHURCH

Tells of Work in Institutional Church in East Tokio

Fred E. Hagin, for 21 years a missionary to Japan, delivered an address at the Central Christian church Sunday night. His visit came as a surprise. He left his homeland two years ago to resume his work, after a furlough, but had to leave Tokio suddenly about December 1, on account of deafness, which necessitated delicate operations to the inner ear, which could be done only in Chicago. He will leave for that city, January 26, and if the operation is successful he will return to Japan.

In his address here last night, he told of the work on an institutional church in East Tokio. He conceived the plan 11 years ago but was able to start work only two years ago. It will take $100,000 to complete the church and $67000 has been pledged.

Mrs. Hagin and children lived here several years and the family is well-known.

The oldest daughter, Ethel, is working with mothers in Tokio. Their son, Dan, who graduated from the local high school, is attending medical college in Evanston and will be a medical missionary. Fannie, also a graduate of Glendale high school is attending Eureka college. Mr. Hagin is a guest of his brother Ed in Los Angeles while in the state, who accompanied him to Glendale Sunday night.

CONTINUE HUNT FOR AVIATORS

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16. — The search for five missing aviators who disappeared between here and Bimini late Friday was continued today. A report that the fliers had been discovered on a tiny island in the Gulf of Mexico is being investigated. All yesterday speed boats and planes combed the waters in the territory of Bimini for the missing passenger plane New York, which left here Friday afternoon for Bimini with five men aboard.

On board the flying boat were M. F. Kahn and H. C. Crenshaw, Montgomery, Ala.; Clinton Leopold, Nazareth, Pa., passengers, and Pilot Culbertson and Mechanician Smith.

The trip from here to Bimini should be accomplished in an hour as the island lies but 40 miles due east from here.

'FORGING AHEAD' IS SERMON'S THEME

Dr. Funk of First Luther- and Church Compliments People

In an address on "Forging Ahead," Dr. Funk commended the members of his flock for their achievements during the first year in which they had been associated together as pastor and people. "But," he declared, "our church cannot live on its record in the past. If she would live, and continue to be an important factor in the development of mankind, she must forge ahead. There must be no relaxation, but more life. With more knowledge there will come increased power, larger giving and holier living. We must learn to give ourselves.

"Now, in founding this church, which we love, there will be little room for worldly minded, pleasure-seeking or lazy people. You will do well to excuse from your roll of members the knocker, the church boss, as well as the man whose chief business is to be a thorn in the flesh to the pastor and a nuisance to the church in general. I am glad that you do not have any of this fraternity in your organization now. Neither can your pastor stand around on his dignity and wait for people to come to him; moreover, it is your business and mine to go out into the byways and the hedges and compel them to come in. Your pastor can nave no special favorites, for he must be a friend to all, a burden-bearer, a leader and a uniter of the people.

"Our text reads, 'And they say unto Him, we can.' God delights in developing great characters by passing them through the refiner's fire; out of great difficulties; out of the humblest and the most remote places, yea, hated and despised, God calls forth His heroes. Behind prison bars, in the shoemaker's shop, in the miner's home, or deep down underneath the ground the All-seeing Eye detects the possibilities of a mighty man, and brings him forth a conquering hero by imparting unto him the grace to overcome the obstacles in his path, to say 'I can,' and do it."

POINCARE MEETS TEST ON THURSDAY

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The Poincare ministry composed entirely of conservatives, will face its first test Thursday. The new cabinet, which held its first formal meeting after word had been received that the last doubtful post, that of minister of colonies, had been accepted by Albert Sarraut, now in Washington, decided not to call the chamber of deputies until Thursday. The Clemenceau group, which carries on the ideals of the "Tiger" will also be lined up against the new cabinet.

COLUMBUS WAS NOT DISCOVERER

Capt. Jean Cousin Made Grade Four Years Before Chris

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The French press has entered one more contestant for the honor of having discovered America. This time is it a Frenchman, one Capt. Jean Cousin of Dieppe, who, historians of this country say, reached the continent of South America, near the mouth of the Amazon, four years before Columbus set out on his eventful voyage.

Cousin's discovery, according to his champions, grew out of commercial enterprises founded jointly by merchants of Rouen and Dieppe. The trade of these cities with their African posts, founded in 1365, was halted by the war with England.

When an attempt was made to resume the trade it was found that the Dutch, English and Portuguese had obtained control of the African coast as far south as the equator, and that it was necessary to arm all ships. Thirty Norman merchants, wishing to avoid this expense, fitted out a fleet under Cousin and commanded him to seek new trading lands to the west of Africa.

Leaving Dieppe in 1488, according to the tradition, Cousin sailed southward to the equator and then turned westward, reaching the American continent two months later.

Returning to Africa, Cousin is declared to have sailed south and to have rounded the Cape of Good Hope nine years before Vasco da Gama.

Cousin's champions, who have existed in every century since his alleged discovery, have all declared that the captain was accompanied on his voyage by a Spaniard named Vincente Pinzon, a mutinous fellow whom Cousin on his return to Dieppe had expelled from France. It is pointed out that three Pinzon brothers accompanied Columbus on his voyage four years later. Vincente Yanez Pinzon was navigator for Columbus.

A case of cruelty to a pony was being tried at the police court.

The witness for the prosecution, Policeman Flanagan, was cross-examined by the counsel for the defense.

"Now, officer, be careful and remember that you are on oath. Was the pony in the cart or was it not?"

"No, it was not!" emphatically replied Flanagan.

"You hear that, your honor?" triumphantly proclaimed the counsel for the defense. "Then pray, officer, where was the pony?"

"In the shafts," answered the exact policeman.

RUBBER EMPIRE HAS COLLAPSED

Returning Travelers Say Pawn Shop Keeper Is Rich

BELLO HORIZONTE, Brazil, Jan. 16.—In Rio they talk of hard times and thank the Lord things aren't as bad as they are in Amazonas. Travelers who have just arrived here by river, mule and railway from the great northern state, substantiate the news of the collapse of the "rubber empire."

Manaos, once one of the great boom cities of the world, now is shrinking to its old place as an equatorial river port "a thousand miles from here." The famous Hotel Grande, which a few years ago boasted the largest champagne cellar in Brazil, has been closed, and travelers must find accommodations in a pensao operated by a kindly German who understands how to combat tropic bugs.

The great Theater Municipal, built during the halcyon days of the rubber trade, is falling into decay and the street car system is failing to pay operating expenses, according to the travelers.

Thousands of Spanish and Portuguese emigrants already have deserted the rubber country—scattering throughout Brazil or returning to their homes. Steamship service between Manaos and Para continues on regular schedule, however, and traffic is considerable. The population of the river state has not lost hope and is waiting only for a new boom in "para" rubber to start new purchases of diamonds to replace those that have gone the way of hard times.

One of the few men making money in Manaos, according to the travelers, is a young jew with capital enough to conduct a pawn shop. Last month he shipped jewelry to Paris valued at 75,000 francs and admits he made forty per cent profit on the deal. All the jewels came from once wealthy families now pinched by the low rubber market.

BERLIN WILL TAX LATE SIGHT-SEERS

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—An ordinance taxing sightseers, diners and patrons of cafes, dances and other amusement places who remain out after 1 o'clock, the police closing hour, has been unanimously approved by the city council. The tax will be collected in the form of cards and will amount to from 15 to 100 per cent of the price of admission to all-night amusement places.

You can light a room by burning a match—but not very satisfactorily. You can also "advertise" property through using placards—with about the same degree of satisfaction.
